Property Description

Discover Altos de Drake, an impressive 55-acre property majestically situated above Drake Bay on the northern part of the Osa Peninsula. This outstanding location forms the "Gateway to Corcovado National Park," offering an unparalleled proximity to one of the most biodiverse places on Earth. Unique Geographical Location Altos de Drake borders the largest primary forest on the American Pacific coastline. It is one of the few remaining sizable areas of primary tropical rainforest in the world. Offshore from this stunning property lies Caño Island National Park, a world-renowned dive site in the Pacific Ocean. Unparalleled Value This property is unique not only in Costa Rica but worldwide. Embedded within the Osa Conservation Area, Altos de Drake offers tremendous value in the context of global land costs. Here, you will find real estate gems: farmland, primary forest, breathtaking ocean views, close beach access, significant river frontage, and road front.
