Property Description

Why ancestral energy? I thought it was just another farm but you see the majesty of its views and on a tour with the owner he shared with me the secrets of the land and its streams, in which in one of them in their natural form lie beautiful round stones left there by the aborigines centuries ago, and in the other stream you will see how those ancestral inhabitants modified and made many basins along the stream to capture the water, do not hesitate to contact me if you want to know more and see it with your own eyes. In the peaceful countryside, there's a large 247-acre farm just 30 minutes from the lovely town of San Vito. Perched at a cool 1000 meters above sea level, this place has a refreshing climate and great, fresh weather that's soothing to the soul. Gifted by nature, the land has springs providing pure water, a life-giving feature that adds to its charm. Getting here is easy with a well-kept road, making the journey as smooth as the gentle breeze in the meadows.
